His occupation, activities, and place or places where he flourished:

   Attended Madison and Patrick Henry Academies at age eight. Hobbies include: drawing, painting, fishing, and reading. Appointed to West Point Military Academy in 1830 where he received training in engineering. At age 17, he left West Point Military Academy to study medicine in Danville, Virginia with Dr. George Craighead. Unable to perform surgeries, he turned to law. He studied in the office of Anthony M. Dupuy, Clerk of the Circuit and County Courts in Henry County and obtained a license to practice law at age nineteen on February 28, 1835. He moved with his parents to Pontotoc, Mississippi in 1836 where his father was a manager and he was a draftsman for the Chickasaw land office. There he also practiced law in Pontotoc, Chickasaw, Monroe, Marshall, and Lafayette Counties. In 1837 he returned to Henry County, Virginia and entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Returning to Mississippi, he itinerated between churches in Pontotoc, Okolona, Aberdeen and Columbus. In 1839, he went as a foreign missionary to Austin=s Colony, Texas. While there, he served as private secretary to President Mirabeau B. Lamar. In 1847 he was ordained a deacon, then in 1848 was ordained a priest in the Episcopal Church. He served as Episcopal minister in Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Washington, D.C. (1847-1879), with churches in Columbus, Canton, Raymond, and Amite, Mississippi; Austin, Texas; Plaquemines Parish, Mt. Olivet, Myrtle Grove, and Emmanuel Church, Trinity and St. John=s in New Orleans. He gave sermons in Niagara, New York; Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis, Washington, D.C., Virginia, Boston, and Jackson, Mississippi. He preached his 1,264th sermon in Vicksburg, Mississippi.
Witnessed the inauguration of Governor Bell (1851). Served as chaplain of State Senate (1853). Served as a Confederate officer commanding the ABurt Rifles@ in the 18th Regiment, 10th Company, Mississippi Volunteers, during the Civil War (1861). Recording Secretary for the New Orleans Academy of Sciences (1867). Influential in the founding of the University of Texas (1858). Organized the U.S. Navigation Improvement Company. Employed in New Orleans by P.G. T. Beauregard. Appointed as trustee of the University of the South at Sewanee in the early 1880's. Wrote sermons and essays and delivered lectures on a variety of literary and scientific topics. Authored: "The Dying Soldier at Camp Chase,@ How the World Was Peopled, Contributions to the Science Of Hydraulic Engineering, and Elements of Zoology Edward Fontaine, 1814-1884.

Papers of Fontaine, Episcopal minister and Confederate officer, artist, and engineer. Fontaine came to Mississippi in the 1830s, with his father, Patrick Henry Fontaine, where his father managed the Chickasaw Land Office Pontotoc and Edward served as draftsman. Edward Fontaine traveled from Mississippi to Texas in 1839, where he served as private secretary to Republic of Texas President Mirabeau B. Lamar. He was influential in the founding of the University of Texas. He was pastor of Episcopal churches in Pontotoc, Okolona, Aberdeen, Columbus and Madison, Mississippi and in New Orleans, Louisiana and Austin, Texas. As an engineer, Fontaine was known for his work on the Mississippi River; as an artist, he is known for his portraits of a variety of persons. Many of the letters of Edward Fontaine and his daughter Suzette are beautifully illustrated, as are the journals and a geography written by Fontaine. Fontaine's son Lamar is well-known for his activities during the Civil War, and for his post-war writings about his life.

Collection contains personal and business correspondence (1852-1884); 28 daily journals (1836-1884) written in Mississippi, Texas, Louisiana, Virginia, Washington, D.C. and other places; church records; legal papers; autobiographies, biographies, eulogies, articles, sermons and books; genealogical material; letters concerning the U.S. Navigation Improvement Company; and drawings, including a drawing of Owl Creek mounds as Fontaine observed them in 1838. Includes daybook and journal (1818-1856) of P.H. Fontaine, 6 journals (1859-64, 1906-15) of Lemuel S. Brickell (Mrs. Lamar Fontaine), scrapbook (1889) of James F. Fontaine; correspondence (1852-1923) of Edward's wife, Mrs. S.C. Fontaine, and of his children; the Rev. Patrick Henry Fontaine and Susette (Mrs. Susan Fontaine Sawyer), artist and author, and a biography, lectures, writings, photos and other papers of his eldest son, Lamar Fontaine.
