The MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers has been a standard citation guide for the humanities for decades. The 7th edition, published in 2009, contains updated information on citing electronic resources. This brief guide provides examples of citation styles for various sources that are commonly used in humanities research. It is not a replacement for the MLA Handbook.

A copy of the 7th edition of the MLA Handbook (call number REF LB2369 .G53 2009) is available at the Ready Reference Desk, located on the 2nd floor of Mitchell Memorial Library. All material cited in this guide is available in the print or electronic collections of Mississippi State University Libraries.

Book by a Single Author (Section 5.5.2):

Book by More Than One Author (Section 5.5.4):

Chapter From a Book (Section 5.5.6):

Use this format when a book consists of chapters written by different authors. Note that the name of the chapter is placed in quotation marks, and the page numbers of the chapter are included after the publication information. The name(s) of the editor(s) of the work must also be stated.

Article From a Journal (Section 5.4.2):

The title of the article is placed in quotation marks, and the journal that contains the article is underlined. These are followed by the volume number, the year of publication, and the page numbers.

Items Reprinted in the Literary Criticism Series, Opposing Viewpoints Series, or Current Controversies Series (Section 5.5.6):

The Literary Criticism Series consists of biographical information about authors and reprints of articles and book sections written about their literary works. The Opposing Viewpoints and Current Controversies Series contain information on current events topics such as global warming, capital punishment, etc. Each book contains articles, essays, and other items that are often reprinted from other sources.

When citing such articles and excerpts from books, you must first provide information about the original article and then information about the volume in which it was reprinted.

For material reprinted from books:

For material reprinted from journals:

Article From a Journal, Accessed Through an Electronic Database (Section 5.6.4):

In addition to the information required for all journal articles, journal articles accessed through an electronic database should include the name of the database, the medium (Web), and the date the article was accessed.

Newspaper Article, No Author (Section 5.4.5):

Note that if a newspaper has more than one edition, the edition must be given after the date.

Newspaper Article, From an Electronic Database (Section 5.6.4):

Website (or a portion of a website) (Section 5.6.1):
The rules for citing websites vary, depending on such issues as whether the entire website is being cited or just a portion of the website. Consult the paper copy of the MLA Handbook, 7th ed., for more details.
